"We have a very eminent group of speakers this year including Professor Burns, the DoH's National Clinical Director for Dementia, who will let us know how dementia is perceived at the highest level. Other speakers will update our knowledge about current approaches to assessing patients who may have dementia or delirium, and where clinical trials are taking us. We will also learn about exciting developments in the national dementia research strategy and the very significant research role of the Alzheimer's Society."

Professor Gordon Wilcock
