

Temi Ogunjimi is a trainee clinical scientist working in Radiation Protection at King's College Hospital. Her pursue of a career in Medical Physics stems from her interest in medical imaging which was fuelled more whilst undertaking a BEng in Medical Engineering. She is interested in increasing awareness of Medical Physics by educating sixth form students and science graduates through events and outreach programmes and encouraging them to consider a career in within the field.